MONTHLY LIVE WORKSHOP · TAMAR ROUTLY & MARK WRIGHT

Stop performing. Start connecting.

A 60-minute live workshop to find the voice you've been editing out, and the one person it's for. It's the best way to get a taste of how we work.

First Monday, monthly | 3 p.m. PT / 6 p.m. ET | Live on Zoom

$50 USD, credited toward the Collective

IN ONE HOUR, YOU'LL

01

Meet your Hidden Editor

The voice that edits you before anyone else hears you, and the old rule it's still following.

02

Find your ONE person

Stop talking to "everyone." Picture the one person who most needs to hear what you have to say.

03

Write your first real line

Leave with one honest sentence in your own voice, ready to say on the mic, on stage or on the page.

You don't need a podcast, and you don't have to talk or be on camera. Everyone who registers gets the replay. Bring a pen. That's it.

YOUR HOSTS

Tamar Routly is a voice strategist and the author of Sobriety for Dummies. The first time she spoke on a stage, she told her own story, and people came up afterward to thank her. The moment she stopped performing, people leaned in.

Mark Wright spent 35 years in broadcast news helping people tell the truth on camera. He tells every room: "You guys are already Lamborghinis. We're just polishing you up."

> "The part of your voice you're most tempted to mute is exactly what your audience is waiting for."
